

The Chicago Reader 10/8/2004

GORCH FOCK This seven-piece band of busy musicians from Austin released its self-titled first album almost a year ago -- what, you didn't feel the Mount Saint Helens-like rumble? Maniacal and explosive and wickedly confident, Gorch Fock incorporates trombone, electronics, and a head-spinning double-drum-kit attack into an inventive, art-metalish fun house that should be just the thing for anyone who's wondered why they don't make bands like the Melvins anymore. Lori Surfer, of the Buttholes in their heyday, contributes projections to the live show. Bleach headlines and the Latest open. - Monica Kendrick